Recommendations

The fire refuge by the staircase on the second floor should be cleared of stationary wheelchairs so that it is no longer blocked and can be used in the event of an emergency.

The radiator cover in room 26 was loose and requires tightening up. (We visited room 26 as it had no occupancy at the time of the visit) Radiator covers in other rooms should be checked.

The Chandeliers were all very clean except for a few in the dining room, where cobwebs were evident.

There was a non- fitting plug in the ground floor communal bathroom opposite the lift.

Extractor fans in the second-floor washroom and ground floor communal bathrooms need cleaning.

On arrival at the Care Home we were met by the Registered Manager, Karen Tait. Karen introduced us to Karen Metabile, the Clinical Lead Nurse, who was our main point of contact for most of the visit. Karen Metabile facilitated our visit and provided us with access to all relevant areas of the home. We met with both at the end of the Visit to report back.

Physical Description of the Care/Nursing Home

The building is situated off the main road which leads into a village. The approach to the home is via a tree lined drive with car parks off, including a designated staff car park. The home was originally a hotel, so has some intricate detail within it. The entrance foyer is pleasant with various arrangements of flowers, table and chairs for visitors to use. A signing in book was evident, for name, purpose of visit, time of arrival, car registration and time of departure, as a health and safety requirement. A fish tank is placed in the smaller, quieter lounge area where residents can sit peacefully and enjoy the views from the window. There were no unpleasant odours anywhere in the home, the decoration was bright and in very good condition, the walls were free of marks and scuffs, the carpets were clean and in good condition (the home had been re-carpeted 2 years ago). The wipe able floor surfaces in the bathrooms were of good condition and clean. All walls were painted yellow brightened the rooms and gave off a warm, calming aura.

The furniture was of a high quality and appropriate for the clients, high backed with arms, in very good condition and clean. Velour in appearance but a plastic wipe able fibre. In the downstairs sitting room looking out onto the patio there was a wall of memorabilia advertising, wartime and post war posters. A desk and furniture of the elegant era of the day.

The lighting throughout the home including some bathrooms and the dining room was of modern chandeliers, also in the corridors, in keeping with the ambience of the atmosphere. The windows were clean and easily seen through. Curtains were modern and clean fitted well and properly hung.

There was a separate storage room for linen and equipment, which was well stocked and tidy. A call system display unit was present on each floor and each nurse /carer carried a personal display unit, this was in working order.

On the ground floor were two the administration offices.

There were numerous hand sanitisers throughout the home

Activities

There is an Activities co-ordinator on site, plus 1 that goes into the home on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

During our observation, there was an activity taking place in the downstairs sitting room, all clients were seated and there was plenty of space for specific personal mobility chairs. The activity was being led by a staff member, it sounded like a resident's quiz of a reminiscence nature which revealed much laughter from the clients. 16 residents were partaking in this.

There was a schedule of activities presented in the foyer, displaying what activities were due to take place on each day across the month.

Majority of religious services organised are of a Christian nature. A visiting clergy is requested to come and administer communion to clients once a month. A beauty salon is organised on the ground floor.

A hairdresser visits once a week.

In the foyer, there were photographs displayed from St Patrick's day (6 days prior to visit). Residents were partaking in the orange and green colours with humorous spectacles, enjoying cakes and tea. The home takes pride in displaying special events and birthdays in the foyer for visitors and relatives to have a look at. The staff have also produced photo albums to store all the photographs in.

All tables were laid for 4 people with tablecloth, cutlery, serviettes, condiments and drinking glass or vessel as appropriate for the person in their designated place. A reminder notice board was on the wall for staff as an aide memoire for laying up the tables. Soft low key music, inoffensive and of the era for the residents. Some residents sat in their mobility chair. There was ample space for the spare chairs to be moved out of the way.

A choice of 2 available meals was offered, Gammon with veg and Scampi and chips with veg. There are always 2 choices offered at lunch time. Each resident was asked individually which they would prefer by going to and asking in a normal speaking voice. The meals were served from a heated trolley and staff worked very much as a team. Where residents required help with eating, a staff member sat next to them to assist. A refill of liquids was offered during the meal, a choice of two squashes.

Staff

The HW team were fortunate enough to have the company of Karen Metabile for the duration of the visit. Guiding us around and answering our questions.

During our conversations, it was obvious that the staff were happy in their work. Enjoyed the company of the residents and were dedicated and loyal to the home; an example of this was from the house keeper Mikki who has worked there for many years, who is diligent and robustly in her work, covering the laundry rota as well as the cleaning of the home. The small cleaning team, have a schedule, but also undertake cleaning duties that are outside the schedule if necessary or requested by the housekeeper. Each cleaner has their own area of responsibility. The housekeeper is responsible for COSHH. Risk assessments are done and new staff are guided.

Staff had a good rapport with the residents and friendly yet respectful interactions were observed between them throughout the course of the visit. When appropriate staff would crouch down to residents to speak to them more efficiently.

“Communication is good but could be sharper” within the home amongst all staff. Team meetings are held and found to be very useful.
